1 Scope

This standard specifies the technical content of the technical engineering approval (BMG).

Overall development requirements are to be taken from Volkswagen standard VW 99000, contents of the planning release from VW 99000-1, contents of the procurement release from Volkswagen 99000-2, and contents of the design release (Audi) and engineering release (Volkswagen) from VW 99000-3.

2 Terms and abbreviations

The following definitions apply to the application of this standard:

3-D	Three-dimensional
0-series	Zero series

3 Technical engineering approval (BMG)

All changes, adjustments, and coordinative tasks carried out during tool manufacture, trial period, and introduction into standard production shall be incorporated into the 3-D CAD data models, into the corresponding drawings, and into the technical bill of materials.

The following prerequisites shall be met for the issuance of the technical engineering approval:

- Complete drawing data record (according to standard production sampling)
- Obtainment of statutory type approval by the contractor (if required)
- Dimensional and laboratory-generated test reports regarding the testing conditions
- Record of the manufacturing parameters or serial number of such a record
- Complete review or partial review of the component trial according to specifications of the purchaser by the Testing Department of the purchaser.

Conclusion: Technical engineering approval granted by the purchaser.
